

SØK2010 Banking – spring 2019

Candidate: 10036

This candidate's exam paper was essentially perfect.

There was one quantitative question, which was solved cleanly and correctly using approximation as well as the full and accurate formula.

The answers to the verbal questions were brief, but clear, correct, and to the point.

The candidate showed an excellent grasp of the relevant concepts.

The answer to the main question gave an excellent explanation of how central banks' rate decisions are transmitted to the financial markets. The candidate made informative use of a graph and showed clear understanding of the role of arbitrage.

Knut Anton Mork

Professor II/Adjunct Professor

NTNU Trondheim